

SAYS FORMER WIFE HIRED GIRL TO TRAP HIM INTO DIVORCE

She Paid Co-Respondent $50
Week to Compromise Him,
Earle Charges.

SHE SEEKS ALIMONY.
Fighting Her Plea, He Involves
Her Present Hubby in Tale of Gay Wine Suppers.

The charge that his wife's decree of divorce was obtained on evidence supplied by a hired co-respondent was made by Charles Earle, a wealthy resident of Mount Vernon in reply to-day to the answer Mrs. Earle's application for alimony of $50 a month with which to educate their daughter. The co-respondent was Margaret L. Winfield, who lived at No. 3 West Ninety-first street, and according to affidavits submitted to Justice Aspinwall by Earle this morning, she received a "salary" of $50 a week from Mrs. Earle, together with a "bonus" of $25 when she succeeded in trapping Earle.

The former Mrs. Helen Mickle Earle is now the wife of Capt. James Leighton Earle of Westbury, L. I. She obtained a legal separation from Earle in 1908, and in June, 1912, Justice Knough granted her a decree of absolute divorce, giving her the custody of a two-year-old daughter, Caroline Mickle Earle.

CONTENDS DIVORCE EVIDENCE WAS "FRAMED-UP."

In reply to his wife's present application for an allowance for her daughter, Mrs. Earle swears Mrs. Earle has $50,000 which she inherited from her father and is otherwise comfortably situated financially.

Mrs. Earle to-day on affidavit made by July 25, 1907, of No. 127 Fulton street, an employee of Earle's law firm, New York and Mount Vernon, declares he became acquainted with Charles E. Earle, a detective employed by Mrs. Earle's lawyers, and through him he met Margaret L. Winfield. Mrs. Earle says that as the friendship between the Winfield woman and her husband grew "fixed" so that in five weeks she then Mrs. Earle secured evidence enough for a divorce, when other parties had failed for five years. She told him that for a salary of $50 a week, she moved to a house near Mr. Earle's home in Mount Vernon, where she brought eggs from Earle, being as "a son."

HUSBAND'S WITNESS TELLS OF GAY WINE SUPPERS.

Mrs. Winfield then told him, swears Earle, of having induced Earle to call upon her and that she succeeded in getting into a compromising position with Earle in her Ninety-first street home and in the Woodland Lake Hotel, near Asinwall, with Earle's consent, as a husband's witness. Upon this Earle based his contention that the divorce was obtained by collusion and fraud.

Another affidavit, submitted by Earle to-day, was signed by Catherine Coleman of No. 115 West Seventy-ninth street, who says she was employed in Mrs. Earle's home, No. 32 West Ninety-fourth street, late in 1910, and that Capt. Earle, living there at the time, was on terms of great intimacy with Mrs. Earle. She also tells of wine suppers lasting until 1 o'clock in the morning.

Earle, in addition to fighting his wife's application for alimony, also filed the evidence of their daughter's abduction from Mrs. Earle on the ground that she is not a fit person to rear the child. Justice Aspinwall reserved decision on both points.

GIRL DROWNS SELF AFTER SCOLDING BY HER FATHER.

Annie Gasch, Sixteen Years Old, Found in Hudson, Committed Suicide, Investigation Reveals.

(Special to The Evening World.)
POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 25.—There is no doubt in the minds of Coroner Sedgwick and the other authorities that Annie Gasch, the sixteen-year-old girl whose body was taken from the Hudson River opposite this city Sunday afternoon, committed suicide. An autopsy by Doctors G. W. Poucher and J. S. Wilson showed the girl was alive when she entered the water. There was no mark of violence.

Employed in an underwear factory, she left her work at 4 o'clock a week ago Saturday. She appeared at the home of her father, Peter Gasch, the following day and told her parents she had remained the night before at the home of a girl friend. Her father was very angry. Annie then went to the home of a relative, but was rebuffed.

"All there is left for me to do now is to drown myself," she is reported to have said.

Tucked into the girl's waist, the coroner found a postcard bearing the photograph of Charles Moore, a young man who had been seen occasionally in company with the girl. Moore was questioned to-day by Chief McCabe. He said he had asked her to go to a moving picture show the night she did not go, but she declined. That was the last time he saw her, he said.

City of Denver Wins Suit.
WASHINGTON, May 25.—The Supreme Court today that the City of Denver, in suing looking toward the creation of a municipal water system, was not compelled to buy the private stock of the Denver Union Water Company at the company's 100 share price. The court held that the contract between the city and the company was not to be broken.

IS THERE A HUSBAND FAMINE?

Seventh Article of a Series.

Copyright, 1913, by The Press Publishing Co. (The New York World).

New York Girls Accused of Repelling Men By Their Empty Chatter and Silly Actions

"Men Don't Marry Because They Do Not Find the Kind of Girl Here They Knew in Their Home Town," Says "Mort"—"The Men Don't Look in the Right Places," Writes "Madeline."

By Nicola Greeley-Smith.

"Why don't men marry? Because they do not find the kind of girl here they knew in their home town. When I first came to New York I spent considerable time at social gatherings. Of course I met many women, and after listening to their empty chatter and varnished lies, seeing their silly actions and knowing their inflated opinions as to their value, I lost interest. Now I look forward with pleasure to my business trips, to some towns along my route where I have friends and can enjoy the good, honest girls I am fortunate enough to meet."—Extract from the Letter of a Young Man.

"Some of the men declare they are looking for sweet, lovable girls, refined girls, for wives, and that they cannot be found. They don't look in the right places. The men of to-day spend their money on the stylish, slightly woman who makes a good appearance and causes other men to stare. They feel proud that the other men are envious; but when it comes to choosing a wife, the modern man picks out a demure little homebody."—Extract from the Letter of a Young Woman.

There, then, is the situation. Both sides admit that there is a husband famine. But the girls blame the young men and the sons of Adam attribute the decline of matrimony to the superficiality and selfishness of modern femininity. A third letter, which breathes a philosophic calm worthy of its signature, "Marcus Aurelius," assures us that the matrimonial situation has not changed since long before Julius Caesar was a boy, and that the right places. They certainly won't find that kind in the gay city. And they may have difficulty also because this kind of girl usually has common sense enough to see what an uneven proposition marriage is, and avoid it.

The men of the present day spend their money on the stylish, slightly woman who makes a good appearance, and who causes other men to stare. They feel proud that the other men are envious; but when it comes to choosing a wife, the modern man picks out a demure little homebody who is so grateful for the honor of having Mrs. attached to her name that she is willing to stay at home and become stout and mature and homely over her household duties for the comfort of her spouse, while he enjoys almost as much liberty as before. I have known women who were so in fear of the opprobrium "old maid" that they married undesirable men and suffered in silence.

I do not think any sensible girl cares a bit about how much money a man spends on her before marriage, providing he is not altogether penniless, but most women accept a man's attentions because it is the custom. Upon first acquaintance to stay at home and become stout and mature and homely over her household duties for the comfort of her spouse, while he enjoys almost as much liberty as before. I have known women who were so in fear of the opprobrium "old maid" that they married undesirable men and suffered in silence.

I do not think any sensible girl cares a bit about how much money a man spends on her before marriage, providing he is not altogether penniless, but most women accept a man's attentions because it is the custom. Upon first acquaintance to stay at home and become stout and mature and homely over her household duties for the comfort of her spouse, while he enjoys almost as much liberty as before. I have known women who were so in fear of the opprobrium "old maid" that they married undesirable men and suffered in silence.

I do not think any sensible girl cares a bit about how much money a man spends on her before marriage, providing he is not altogether penniless, but most women accept a man's attentions because it is the custom. Upon first acquaintance to stay at home and become stout and mature and homely over her household duties for the comfort of her spouse, while he enjoys almost as much liberty as before. I have known women who were so in fear of the opprobrium "old maid" that they married undesirable men and suffered in silence.

I do not think any sensible girl cares a bit about how much money a man spends on her before marriage, providing he is not altogether penniless, but most women accept a man's attentions because it is the custom. Upon first acquaintance to stay at home and become stout and mature and homely over her household duties for the comfort of her spouse, while he enjoys almost as much liberty as before. I have known women who were so in fear of the opprobrium "old maid" that they married undesirable men and suffered in silence.

I do not think any sensible girl cares a bit about how much money a man spends on her before marriage, providing he is not altogether penniless, but most women accept a man's attentions because it is the custom. Upon first acquaintance to stay at home and become stout and mature and homely over her household duties for the comfort of her spouse, while he enjoys almost as much liberty as before. I have known women who were so in fear of the opprobrium "old maid" that they married undesirable men and suffered in silence.

I do not think any sensible girl cares a bit about how much money a man spends on her before marriage, providing he is not altogether penniless, but most women accept a man's attentions because it is the custom. Upon first acquaintance to stay at home and become stout and mature and homely over her household duties for the comfort of her spouse, while he enjoys almost as much liberty as before. I have known women who were so in fear of the opprobrium "old maid" that they married undesirable men and suffered in silence.

I do not think any sensible girl cares a bit about how much money a man spends on her before marriage, providing he is not altogether penniless, but most women accept a man's attentions because it is the custom. Upon first acquaintance to stay at home and become stout and mature and homely over her household duties for the comfort of her spouse, while he enjoys almost as much liberty as before. I have known women who were so in fear of the opprobrium "old maid" that they married undesirable men and suffered in silence.

I do not think any sensible girl cares a bit about how much money a man spends on her before marriage, providing he is not altogether penniless, but most women accept a man's attentions because it is the custom. Upon first acquaintance to stay at home and become stout and mature and homely over her household duties for the comfort of her spouse, while he enjoys almost as much liberty as before. I have known women who were so in fear of the opprobrium "old maid" that they married undesirable men and suffered in silence.

I do not think any sensible girl cares a bit about how much money a man spends on her before marriage, providing he is not altogether penniless, but most women accept a man's attentions because it is the custom. Upon first acquaintance to stay at home and become stout and mature and homely over her household duties for the comfort of her spouse, while he enjoys almost as much liberty as before. I have known women who were so in fear of the opprobrium "old maid" that they married undesirable men and suffered in silence.

YOUR HAIR TURNING GREY OR FADED

Restored Immediately to Dark, Beautiful Color by Hay's Hair Health.

There is no need of any one nowadays having grey or faded hair, or dandruff, either, that causes it to fall out constantly.

Fading hair and dandruff ruin a beautiful head of hair in no time, and grey and faded hair make you look so much older than you really are.

Hay's Hair Health used regularly will bring your hair back to its natural color quickly and more effectively than anything else. It's so easy to use; just apply a little at night, according to directions, and you'll be delighted and surprised at the almost immediate change. Often a single application will do wonders toward restoring the hair to its natural color. People everywhere are using Hay's Hair Health in preference to any other preparation to restore their hair to its dark, beautiful, glossy natural color, because it does it so much quicker and more satisfactorily, and is so much nicer and cleaner to use.

Druggists will refund your money if Hay's Hair Health is not satisfactory after a fair trial.

The Sauce That Really Is Made and Bottled in England

HOLBROOKS

WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE

Imported Absolutely!!

THE BEST REMEDY FOR
CONGESTION must stimulate the Liver, Stomach and Nervous System without injurious after effects.

THE NEW REMEDY
Banyedi James Pills

is a scientific discovery which must satisfy the most exacting doctor. It is a safe and reliable remedy for all cases of congestion of the liver, stomach and nervous system without injurious after effects.

the caller who is attracted by a certain girl suggests the theatre, then dinners follow, and occasional gifts. If she is a stylish girl, he goes the limit of his pocketbook, and then wonders at her "nerves" when she expects him to continue his attentions after marriage. A woman thinks far more of a man who explains his limitations in the money line, and shows her with little courtesies that cost nothing, than of the man who has little and makes a big showing. Men do not study the character of the girls they call upon.

If I were in the matrimonial market (I am too sensible to be) I should value myself at a high price. For I am able to take care of a house, am a business girl and understand a business man's career, am accomplished enough to be entertaining and have studied that rare quality, "tact," until I am able to know just how to use it without being altogether untruthful. I have few suitors because I do not care at all for modern pleasures, and when a man asks me to go to the theatre and I refuse, he is too discouraged to make further overtures. I have one ambitious caller who knows my views, and as he is just starting in the business world, is glad to find a girl upon whom he need spend little money, but I am fully aware that as soon as he earns enough he will join his sex in finding the flightiest girl to spend it on.

There may be a famine in husbands; I am also of the idea that there is a famine in the womanly, comradely girl.

HE PREFERS OUT-OF-TOWN GIRLS FOR COMPANY.

Dear Madam: No doubt there exists or appears to exist a scarcity of eligible young men, as there also appears to be an extreme shortage of acceptable young women.

I am a bachelor, thirty-two years of age, and continually travel the Eastern States and Canada. My home is in New York, where I know dozens of fine men—not the proverbial good fellows, but the real, good, honest and ambitious men possessing morals. Most of my men friends are from out of town. Why don't they marry? Because they do not find the kind of girl here that they were accustomed to in their home town. And there is a difference! You must be born and bred in New York not to see it. When I first came here I spent considerable time at social gatherings. Of course I met many women, and after listening time after time to their empty chatter and varnished lies, seeing their inflated opinions as to their value, I lost interest.

Now I do not depend on this method of entertainment in New York, but I look with pleasure on my business trips to some towns on my route where I have friends and where I can enjoy the company of the good, honest girls I am fortunate to meet.

I do not place all girls in this category. I have met some very fine women in New York, but they were mostly all married and their numbers were small.

I do not think the girls are entirely at fault; it is the city they live in. A girl here cannot picture life outside her own block, and furthermore does not want to know anything else but New York. Clothes and pleasure afford her the most food for conversation. She measures a man by the amount of money he spends on her and considers him a dead one if he is decent.

SAME OLD TROUBLE SEVERAL THOUSAND YEARS AGO.

Dear Madam: As I was worried about the general incompatibility of husbands and wives and the decline of marriage, I consulted an old, happily-married couple that I know, who have celebrated their diamond jubilee, and, believe me, that is some jubilee! The old man said that there was the same old trouble with the marriage game when he was a boy, and in his town about the same proportion of happy and unhappy couples; the happy ones were in the majority, but they "sawed wood and said nothing," while the unhappy ones yelled, which made them seem more numerous. There was also the same number of sportive bachelors and aggressive spinsters. The old lady agreed with all this, and added that there were more peaches than lemons in the grab-bag. They were optimistic and serene, and they cheered me up. They are a worthy couple, of wide experience. Their names are Keishner and Ta-Bak, and they are residing at present in a glass case in the Metropolitan Museum. Their home town was Thebes, Egypt. They were married 2,000 years before Julius Caesar was a boy.

ANITA'S MEETING TO-DAY.

The New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage will hold a big noon meeting to-day at their downtown annex, No. 3 Broadway, near the Stock Exchange. Among the speakers will be Miss Lucy J. Price and Miss Howe. If any suffragists appear and offer to participate the anti promise to give them a lively debate.

JAPANESE EMPEROR BETTER, BUT EMPRESS TAKEN SICK.

Contracted Cold Watching at Bed-side of Husband—Her Condition Not Serious.

TOKIO, May 25.—Emperor Yoshihito is better, but the Empress Sadako has fallen ill from a cold contracted during her long vigil at her husband's bedside. Her illness, however, is not very serious, but it has caused her to be confined to her room and on the advice of the physicians in attendance she will not be present at to-morrow's meeting of the Red Cross Society of Japan, for which arrangements had been made.

Going Away?

Don't forget to take a few bottles of

Odol
Its daily use will insure perfect Mouth Health and keep your teeth in fine condition.
Price 25 Cents. All Druggists.
There is Nothing "Just as Good."
GEO. BORGFELDT & CO.
NEW YORK CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO

"When Broke Call on Uncle Ben"
BENJAMIN FOX.
RELIABLE PAWNBROKER
73 Ninth Ave., Near 14th Street.
Liberal Loans on Diamonds, etc. All Loans Good for One Year. Tel. 104 CHRYSLER.

James McCreery & Co.

34th Street

23rd Street

Specially Prepared Sale

On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday

Remarkable Values

MEN'S FURNISHINGS & UNDERWEAR

600 Dozen Shirts of Madras and Mercerized Materials; various models and sleeve lengths; also separate collars to match. values 1.50 and 2.00 95c

400 Dozen Silk Shirts in stripes; soft bosom and French cuffs. values 3.50 and 4.00. 2.65

Pajamas made of Madras and Percale,—low or military cut, finished with frogs. 95c value 1.50

600 Dozen Bow Ties and Four-in-Hand Scarfs made of Foreign and Domestic Silks. 50c
values 1.00 and 1.50

700 Raincoats,—English model. Tan or Gray. values 15.00 and 18.00. 8.75

Tennis Trousers,—White, Gray and Light Stripe Flannel. values 5.00, 6.00 and 7.00. 3.25

Straw Hats,—English manufacture; best make. values 2.50 and 3.00. 1.65

MEN'S UNDERWEAR

Athletic Underwear made of Stripe Mull or Silk Stripe Madras; coat shirts and knee drawers. value 1.00. 65c per garment

Sea Island Cotton Underwear,—shirts with short or long sleeves; drawers in ankle or knee length. value 1.00. 55c per garment

Sea Island Cotton Underwear,—shirts with short or long sleeves; drawers, ankle length. value 65c. 40c per garment

White Athletic Shirts and Knee Drawers made of Stripe Madras. Special 40c per garment

34th Street

23rd Street

Atwood
RED MAN BRAND
2 for 25 cts.
Atwood: A NEW SUMMER COLLAR. THE FRONT DIP INSURES COMFORT, YET RETAINS THE GOOD APPEARANCE.
EARL & WILSON
MAKERS OF TROT'S BEST PRODUCT